New EC Police Programs Set

A new concept in the method of testing police applicants will be launched this month at El Camino College, called PORT (Peace Officer Recruitment Test).

The PORT Program will permit the police officer applicant, by passing only one written test, to qualify for employment with the Torrance Police Department and six other police departments.

Applicants may take the written test starting at 8 p.m. on the fourth Thursday and at 9 a.m. on the fourth Saturday of each month in Room 1, Campus Center at El Camino College, beginning Thursday, June 26 and Saturday, June 28.

THE SUCCESSFUL candidates will be given a card showing his test score, which will introduce him to participating departments as having passed the initial test and is basically qualified as a police officer candidate.

Individual departments will conduct the remainder of the testing which includes medical and psychiatric examinations and background investigations.

PORT is a pilot program sponsored by the Commission on Peace Officers' Standard and Training and by the Federally financed Law Enforcement Recruitment program.

THE DETAILS of the program were instigated by a test board under the chairmanship of Walter R. Koenig, Chief of Police of Torrance.

Cities participating in the program with Torrance are Beverly Hills, Culver City, El Segundo, Gardena, Inglewood and Manhattan Beach.

This program is scheduled to be in effect for one year, after which it will be further determined whether or not this method has been successful, in the opinions of all participants involved in this experiment.
